THYE HUA KWAN MORAL SOCIETY CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

2015 was an eventful year for the nation and for all of us at Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society (THKMS). In the spirit of the SG50 jubilee celebrations, THKMS organised many inaugural events to commemorate our jubilee year.

We highlighted Singapore's cultural diversity through the SG50 Harmony Wok, SG50 Harmony Road Trip as well as the record-breaking SG50 Harmony Swing where 3578 participants came together to set the record for the Largest Zumba Dance in the Singapore Book of Records. These efforts would not have been successful without the tremendous support of our partners, volunteers and the community. These events paved the way to the 12th Inter Racial Inter Religious Harmony Nite held in July 2015.

With the collective effort from the community, we collected more than 78,500 handmade paper butterflies that set the record for the Largest Display of Paper Butterflies in Singapore Book of Records. The gracefulness of butterflies represents the harmony that we enjoy as one - Singaporeans, regardless of race, language, colour, creed or religion.

Racial and religious harmony continues to be the fundamentals for Singapore's progress and prosperity. In October 2015, THKMS successfully tendered for the land site in Fernvale for the construction of a Chinese Temple. The Temple will not only be a place for religious practices but also an avenue to facilitate interfaith dialogue and understanding through constructive interaction. This is especially important role in the light of global unrest in recent years as a result of religious conflict and extremism. The 2,000 sq m, 30-year leasehold site is expected to be ready by 2019.

The volunteer management unit of Thye Hua Kwan Moral Charities also launched a new initiative known as the THK Aviators to attract, engage and retain our volunteers, They aim to create a meaningful and sustainable impact in the lives of those we serve.

Preparations are also underway for the new THK Nursing Home in Hougang, which will be operational by the third quarter of 2016. The facility will add to our realm of eldercare services to meet the growing demands of an ageing population.

Ang Mo Kio-Thye Hua Kwan Hospital will also embark on the subsequent phases of its expansion plan in 2016 to enhance its infrastructure.

As we look forward to an exciting year ahead, we are thankful for our donors, partners and other stakeholders who have contributed to our cause one way or another. Together, let us continue to do more for the good of Singapore, Our Home.

THYE HUA KWAN TEMPLE (FERNVALE SITE)

A Library for the Sacred Books of all Religions will be set up

The landsite in Fernvale Link that will house the Chinese temple by Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society

THK WINS BID FOR CONSTRUCTION OF CHINESE TEMPLE IN FERNVALE

In October 2015, Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society successfully tendered for a landsite in Fernvale Link for the construction of a Chinese temple.

To promote Inter-Religious Harmony, there will be a special library for the Sacred Books of all religions.

The 2,000 sq m, 30-year leasehold site will house a Hall of Filial Piety, where ancestral tablets will be placed. There will also be video screening facilities in the hall, where families can play videos of their loved ones in remembrance of them.

The Temple will also house Buddhist, Taoist and Confucian deities for worship and lecture halls where multi-religious talks and dialogue will be held to promote inter racial and inter religious understanding.

The project is currently in the design stage and construction is expected to complete in the next three to four years.

Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society wins bid for Fernvale Link site

Group's planned temple will have no columbarium, but a hall for ancestral tablets

Melody Zaccheus and Lester Hio

There will be no columbarium in Fernvale Link.

The Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society, which was awarded the 2,000 sq m, 30-year leasehold site by the Housing Board on Tuesday, said yesterday that the temple it will build on the site will have a "hall of filial piety" for ancestral tablets.

These are usually inscribed with the names of the dead.

The non-profit voluntary welfare organisation beat three other bidders with a $6 million offer.

Its success comes four months after a new tender was called for the site following controversy about a columbarium planned by funeral service firm Life Corporation's subsidiary Eternal Pure Land.

REMEMBRANCE HALL

There will be no ashes and urns in our new temple, but just a hall for people to remember their elders with the aim of promoting good morals.

MR LEE KIM SIANG, chairman of Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society

The new building will be the 37-year-old society's first temple. The group operates more than 70 centres and services such as the Ang Mo Kio-Thye Hua Kwan Hospital. It also runs four welfare homes, five family service centres and 16 senior activity centres.

Besides storing the tablets there, people will also be encouraged to submit and screen videos dedicated to the lives of their late loved ones in the planned hall.

Thye Hua Kwan chairman Lee Kim Siang said: "There will be no ashes and urns in our new temple, but just a hall for people to remember their elders with the aim of promoting good morals."

The new building, budgeted at about $10 million, will likely have four or five storeys. It will have workshop spaces dedicated to Buddhist, Taoist and Confucian deities, and lecture halls where multi-religious courses will be held.

Mr Lee emphasised the multi-religious nature of his organisation, saying it has organised inter-racial and inter-religious harmony nights over the past 12 years.

The other bidders for the plot were the Buddhist Compassion Relief Tzu Chi Foundation Singapore, Lorong Koo Chye Sheng Hong Temple Association and Taoist Peng Hong Association, which placed bids of $4.58 million, $3.88 million and $3.03 million respectively.

HDB first awarded the site, near Build-To-Order homes in Fernvale Lea, to Eternal Pure Land in July last year. Residents protested against the plans for a commercial columbarium on land earmarked for religious use, and the company's $5.2 million bid was cancelled in May.

The authorities introduced new conditions for the tender in June - only religious groups were allowed to bid, including registered societies, charities and non-profit firms.

Sengkang West residents feel more comfortable with a religious society running the building, Mr Peter Leow, a 42-year-old human resource manager, said: "Thye Hua Kwan is an established name without any commercial aims. It is also common for temples to have space dedicated to ancestral tablets."

Future Fernvale Lea resident S.N. Khan, a 29-year-old housewife, said there are already "many Chinese temples in Sengkang West Way". She added: "I hope there will be space dedicated to mosques, Indian temples and churches. I also hope that the new Chinese temple will be able to serve the community regardless of race or religion."

Thye Hua Kwan will appoint architectural firm Lee Coo Consultant Associates to design the building, said Mr Lee. The project is expected to be completed in three to four years.

Mr Lee said he was glad the society won the tender. "It's affinity. The time has come for us to build a temple to serve the community."

"Everyone needs a space where he can be comfortable to meditate and sit quietly to pray, whatever his religion."

AMK-THKH NURSE EDUCATOR, MS JOCELYN NG WINS PRESIDENT'S AWARD FOR NURSES 2015

Ms Jocelyn Ng Ling Hui, Nurse Educator at Ang Mo Kio – Thye Hua Kwan Hospital (AMK-THKH) was one of the seven nurses to receive the prestigious President's Award for Nurses from President Tony Tan Keng Yam at the Istana on July 31. She is also the only nurse from the Intermediate and Long Term Care Sector (ILTC) to receive the award this year.

The award is a fitting testament to a career that began 15 years ago, when her grandfather was admitted to Ang Mo Kio Community Hospital, as it was called then.

"I was greatly inspired by the team of nurses who spent time helping my forlorn grandfather build up his confidence. I could see that their inspirational words and their sincere care for my grandfather perceptibly improve his outlook. This combination of their professional expertise along with their heartfelt care for patients made me decide that this was the profession for me," shared Jocelyn.

This initial experience has been an important guiding principle in her daily professional life. "They made me understand that one needs to be passionate about nursing care and about people to provide the best possible care to patients," shared Jocelyn.

Today, as a Nursing Officer who designs and implements continuing education programmes for nurses, Jocelyn is now a mentor, sharing her experiences and professional expertise with junior and aspiring nurses.

The President Award for Nurses, which started in 2000, recognises nurses for their contributions to education, leadership, research and administration in the field of Nursing and is the highest accolade for the profession in Singapore.

2015 NURSES' MERIT AWARD

100 nurses were honoured by the Ministry of Health at the Nurses' Merit Award 2015 for their outstanding performance and dedication to the nursing profession. 2015 coincides the 130th year of nursing in Singapore and also sees the largest number of award recipients since the annual awards started in 1976. Ms Siti Fauziah Binte Rahman, Nursing Officer at Ang Mo Kio-Thye Hua Kwan Hospital were among the award recipients.

Sister Fauziah made a career switch in 2006 after working as a laboratory analyst. "I feel proud that every day in my life as a nurse, I am able to give the care and motivate the patients. Seeing them smile and thanking us from the bottom of their heart is something that money can't buy. I am always happy to be the inspiration of my fellow nurses as they go through their daily challenges of being a nurse, and a friend to them outside of work."

She is currently pursuing her degree in Bachelor of Science in Nursing at La Trobe (Sydney) University and specialises in dementia care and wound care in the elderly.

SPH helps spread some kitty love to hospital patients

Madam Siti Aminah Siregar used to have 24 cats at home in Johor Baru, and playing with therapy cats at the Ang Mo Kio - Thye Hua Kwan Hospital reminds her of them.

"We get to see different cats each time and they are extraordinary ones," said the 70-year-old.

"Cats are very understanding. They know when you're in a bad mood or feeling down."

She was one of about 40 patients at the hospital yesterday who took part in the therapy session, conducted by Cat-Assisted Therapy Singapore.

They were joined by 15 staff volunteers from Singapore Press Holdings (SPH).

This is the first time that the group, which runs monthly cat therapy programmes at the hospital, is collaborating with a company to conduct its programme.

While it started out with only two cats in 2013, the group now has about 30 therapy cats, which belong to the group's volunteers. Each therapy session - during which the patients interact with the felines - involves four to eight cats and six volunteers.

"I think it's a new and unique activity," said Ms Chin Soo Fang, head of corporate communications at SPH.

"This allows people to see the gentler side of cats and helps them to destress."

Ms Samsiah Hassan, a pre-press technician at SPH, said: "I think that it's good interaction for the patients and cats.

"Instead of lying in bed, they get to move around and interact with the animals."

Mr Mohamad Sharil Abdul Rahim, the founder of Cat-Assisted Therapy Singapore, said the cats have a positive effect on patients.

Playing with the felines also improves the patients' upper body strength.

He said: "It's a fun way to conduct rehabilitation."

OUR SUBSIDIARIES ANG MO KIO - THYE HUA KWAN HOSPITAL

Ang Mo Kio – Thye Hua Kwan Hospital (AMK – THKH) is a 360-bedded community hospital that offers rehabilitative and sub-acute care. The Hospital provides a customised care plan for each patient and strives to help patients regain their independence and mobility so as to integrate back into the community. As part of the efforts to improve clinical care and service quality, Ang Mo Kio – Thye Hua Kwan Hospital has also expanded its services to care for patients beyond inpatient care.

Palliative Care

This 18-bedded ward serves and manages patients requiring palliative care. These patients are visited weekly by the Palliative Care Consultants from TTSH and cared for by the Hospital's multidisciplinary palliative care team.

Doctor caring for a patient

Stroke Care Pathway

Started in April 2015, the programme facilitates the seamless transfer of stroke patients to AMK-THKH, as well as to provide training of the Hospital's clinicians to better manage stroke patients. This programme is managed in partnership with Tan Tock Seng Hospital & National Neuroscience Institute.

Robotics Assisted Therapy

Robotics assisted therapy was introduced as a complementary treatment to conventional therapy. The robotic devices, Lokomat and Armeo Spring both provide a robotic exoskeleton to help overcome the limitations of the human body in conventional.

The care team having a discussion on a patient's medical condition

Community Health Common System

The Hospital implemented the Community Hospital Common System (CHCS) in June 2015. This system enables the seamless transition of patient care between Tan Tock Seng Hospital and Ang Mo Kio – Thye Hua Kwan Hospital by allowing medical staff the appropriate access to patients' records online.

Integrated Computerised System @ Pharmacy and Healing Hub

Launched in July 2015, the eIMR (Electronic Inpatient Medication Records), CDSS

(Clinical Decision Support System), DKM (Drug Knowledge Management) enabled our clinical staff to prescribe, dispense and administer medications to inpatients through an integrated system. This system increases patient safety and improves operational efficiency.

Patient Empowerment Programme

The Patient Empowerment Programme enables registered nurses to work with patients to equip them with basic knowledge on chronic disease management and preventive care. The programme has seen the Hospital achieve a 20% improvement in the Chronic Disease knowledge score of patients.

Pharmacist dispensing medication

In addition, the Hospital has encouraged 1,421 patients to go for essential vaccinations and arranged for Bone Mass Assessment screening for 629 patients.

With better knowledge of

their chronic diseases and vaccinations, the patients are less likely to re-visit the emergency department within 28 days after discharge from AMK - THKH. As of September 2015, only 3% of the 2,769 patients enrolled in this programme were re-admitted within 28 days.

Home Healthcare Services

Home Healthcare Services aims to facilitate patients' discharge from the Hospital. The services provided include Home Therapy, Home Medical and Home Nursing.

A therapist and therapy assistant helping a patient get back on his feet

Under this service, patients are also able to apply for the subsidies under the Seniors' Mobility and Enabling Funds for the purchase of medical consumables. Over 360 patients have benefitted from this programme.

Pet Therapy

The Pet Therapy Programme is a bi-monthly activity run by our volunteer management team, to help encourage socialisation and to improve the mental health of our patients. This activity is well-received among patients and has been featured in various media platforms.

Nursing homes in the pipeline

Work on at least seven new nursing homes began this year as part of a plan to ramp up the supply of such facilities across Singapore.

For instance, an 11-storey, 342-bed home in Chai Chee Street is expected to be built by the end of this year. It will be run by NTUC Health Co-operative. Another 236-bed facility in Geylang East Central, slated to be ready in 2017, will also be operated by NTUC.

Voluntary welfare organisation Thye Hua Kwan Moral Society will run a 290-bed home in Hougang. Construction will be completed next year.

Other areas lined up for new nursing homes include Ang Mo Kio Avenue 8 and Choa Chu Kang include Ang Mo Kio Avenue 8 and Choa Chu Kang North 6. The Ministry of Health will build the facilities, but some will be leased out later to healthcare operators to run.

The ministry said last year that it may also run three to four of its own nursing homes to better understand the issues faced by operators, and come up with solutions and innovations in eldercare which can be adopted by others.

While new ones are being built, some existing nursing homes, such as Kwong Wai Shiu Hospital, are due for expansion. Ju Eng Home in Jalan Kayu, which now cares for 334 patients, will be expanded to a 584-bed facility by June next year.

The nursing home seeks to improve the quality of life for ageing Singaporeans and to facilitate ageing in the community. To do that, the Nursing Home will adopt a person-centric approach in providing physical, medical, emotional and social support for clients.

A total of 160 employees, comprising healthcare professionals and support staff will be added to run the THK Nursing Home. The nursing home will also feature amenities such as landscape gardens and rehabilitative gym and elder-friendly infrastructure such as wheelchair-friendly facilities and localised grab-bars.
